The present collection of exercises is intended to supplement those given at the end of the different chapters in the author's Harmony: Its Theory and Practice, as experience has proved the utility of a large number of exercises on each separate branch of the subject. In its general plan, the present series resembles the earlier exercises, but with this difference, that as the student is presumed to have already worked the exercises given in the volume, the average difficulty of the additional pieces—especially of the later ones—is slightly greater than in those which he has previously met with.

No satisfactory reason can possibly be given why harmony exercises should necessarily be (as they certainly are in most books) a mere series of dry chords, mostly in notes of uniform length. An attempt has, therefore, been made in the present work to do for harmony what the late Stephen Heller did so admirably for pianoforte studies—to invest them with musical interest, thus cultivating the student's feeling for melody and rhythm, while at the same time giving him an insight into the harmonic relations of the various chords employed. For this purpose, all the exercises, excepting a few of the earlier ones, are the basses of little pieces, varying in length from eight to thirty-two bars, and containing considerable diversity, both of rhythm and of cadence. In dealing with the various discords, such as the ninths, elevenths, and thirteenth, it has not been thought needful, or even desirable, to insert them in every bar. The author's aim has been to show how they could be introduced easily and naturally, as a composer might use them in the course of a piece. The rarer discords will, therefore, be much seldomer met with in these exercises than those which in actual practice are more commonly employed.

Considerable attention has been paid in writing these little pieces to variety of rhythm and style. With the view of assisting the student in understanding the character of the music required, time indications are added to all except the simplest little pieces. It has been thought desirable to put all the chants and hymn-tunes together at the end of each chapter, instead of mixing them with the other pieces. The remaining exercises are arranged, as far as possible, in the order of difficulty. A few of the hymn-tunes given are familiar melodies; but by far the greater number of them, and the whole of the chants, have been written specially for the work.

As some of the later exercises will unquestionably be found difficult by the student, he may be inclined, after one or two failures, to conclude that it is impossible to obtain a satisfactory melody. It is, therefore, advisable to say that every exercise in the book, without exception, has been written out in full before the bass has been set; there is, therefore, not one which is absolutely unworkable. In cases of difficulty it will often be found expedient to change the position of a chord. If, for instance, a minim is given in the bass, two crotchets may be freely written above it, with the chord in two positions. The use of passing and auxiliary notes, both accented and unaccented, will frequently be of service in securing a more flowing melody. As an additional aid to the student, the best position for the first chord is marked in each exercise, the figures 8, 3, and 5 indicating that the octave, third, or fifth of the bass note is to be in the upper part.

A key has been prepared, and is in the press, to the whole of these exercises, as well as to those given in the Harmony. This has been done partly in compliance with numerous requests, partly also in consequence of the author's experience that in many cases pupils (perhaps, occasionally, teachers also) fail to see the melodic possibilities of the basses set. To those who are studying without the aid of a master, it is hoped that the key will be found of service. Two cautions must, however, be given to those who propose to use it. First and chiefly, it should in no case be used as a "crib"; the student who attempts to save himself trouble by referring to the key whenever he finds himself in difficulty will never make satisfactory progress—it is like learning to swim with corks. The proper use of the key is for comparison after the exercises have been worked, and not while in course of working. Such comparison will be profitable, not only as showing actual mistakes, but as letting the learner see what chances of a good melody he may have missed. The second caution is, that the student is not to suppose that his exercise is necessarily wrong merely because the position he has chosen differs from that in the key. There are often many good ways of working the same exercises, and the author has himself written several of them in more than one position. There will generally be one best; but this need not exclude others from being good.

"We cannot, however, close this review without particular reference to the most sumptuous edition of Beethoven's Sonatas it has ever been our lot to see. Mr. Ernest Pauer, the editor, has done his work with the greatest possible care and fulness, not only supervising the musical text, but giving historical and other particulars regarding each work. On their part, the publishers have provided amateurs of taste with a veritable édition de luxe in three volumes, gorgeously, but, at the same time, artistically bound, and fit to be on the table in the stateliest home. This is a form of "hommage à Beethoven" which has our cordial sympathy."—The Daily Telegraph, January 4th, 1890.

"The readings of Nottebohm, which present after all no very important divergences from the text usually received of the Sonatas, are adopted; the page is not encumbered with fingering or remarks of any kind, and the whole is by far the most readable of the many cheap editions of the Sonatas that have appeared."—The Times, December 26th, 1890.

"It consists of 612 pages, divided into three volumes, and is clearly and beautifully printed on good paper. The English preface may tell the rest:—'Of editions of Beethoven's pianoforte Sonatas with fingering and other editorial additions there is no lack; and such is the variety among them, that no one, be he learner or accomplished artist, can have any difficulty in finding what he stands in need of. But useful as these instructive and exegetical editions are, they leave, and even call forth, in the hearts of earnest students and sincere lovers of the great master, a desire for the pure, unadulterated text of his works—for the truth, and nothing but the truth. Eusebius Mandyczewski, the editor of the present edition, in taking Gustav Nottebohm, the peerless Beethoven inquirer, for his guide, has followed a path that promises the attainment of the desideratum. Nottebohm (who died in 1839) left a copy of Beethoven's pianoforte Sonatas in which he had entered 'numerous notes—the outcome of a comparison of the oldest editions—relative to the musical text and the rendering of these works.' This annotated copy Mandyczewski made the basis of his edition, and thereby was enabled to give to the musical world what may be confidently regarded as not only trustworthy presentation of these masterpieces of the foremost instrumental composer.'—The Monthly Musical Record, July, 1890.
